LA REGALONCITA AGAIN.

Argument Heard on the Appeal from Judge Andrews's Decision. The case of little Regaloncita came up to day before the General Term of the Supreme Court on an appeal from Judge Andrews's recent decision in favor of Mr. Gerry's Society, Dittenboefer & Gerber appeared for Mrs. 2,000 Charlotte Ewer, the mother of Regainella, and who is the appellant in the case, and Commodore Gerry himself for the People. The lawyers for the appellant submitted at claborate brief arguing, first, that the act -section 292 of the Penal Code-under which Mrs. Ewer was arrested and held was unconstitutional because it deprives a citizen of his stitutional because it deprives a citizen of his rights and privileges without the judgment of his peers.

The second point was that the act was not a valid exercise of the police power of the ideate; and thirdly, that it was a violation of the right of liberty secured to all persons, including children, by the constitution.

A special point was made in the argument that if the provision of the act toroideing dancing was to be saved at all it could only be done by construing the term "dancer" to refer only to a rope or wire dancer, which might endanger the lite or health of a child.

Decision was reserved.

recognized as "regular" by the State Convention, and the only organization from this city which participated in the nomination of the candidates mentioned.

The claim is made, however, by the Voorhis and County Bemocracy leaders that, while they were debarred from direct participation in the Convention; at Saratoga, they were indirectly represented in the National Convention, where their candidate was nominated in preservence to the choice of the "regular."

They claim that the electors names should certainly be printed on the tickets, as the intest of the law is to enable the voter to give the freest expression to his preferences, and not to preclude him from any chance to vote for the candidates of his choice.

The matter of printing the names on the ballots must be decided by the Board of Police Commissioners, whose next regular meeting occurs to-morrow.
